VOL. 1. NO. 174. PRICE FIVE CENTS

HAVE TAKEN 2 LIVES

SO SAID NOTE FOUND ON BODY OF THE MAN BURIED HERE THIS MORNING.

SUICIDE OF LOUIS M. WALBOURN

Young Man Disappeared After Night of Jollification With Acquaintances in St. Louis Last Week One Day.

The remains of Louis G. Walbourn, a young man born and reared in Sedalia and who left this city fifteen years ago for St. Louis, where he had resided since, who threw himself in front of a switch engine at Mexico, Mo., last Friday, arrived here on Katy train No. 3 Sunday morning.

The body was taken to the home of Mrs. Carter May, 414 West Pettis street, where, at 10 a. m. today, Rev. Thomas Watkins, of Calhoun, Mo., who is filling the pastorate of the Broadway Presbyterian church for Rev. D. M. Claggett, conducted funeral services in the presence of relatives and friends.

Interment was in the city cemetery, the following serving as pallbearers: Tom and Sam Atkinson, John Koencke, James and Will Greenstreet and John Fall.

Regarding the dead man the St. Louis Republic this morning has the following:

An unsigned note taken from the body of Louis Walbourn, who lived at No. 4221 Olive street, and who was killed Friday night by a train at Mexico, Mo., has aroused the police to active interest in his history.

"I have taken two lives, therefore I can afford to give one," the note read.

Incidents connected with his death indicate that he threw himself under the wheels of a moving switch engine.

The suicide theory is scouted by friends who had gathered at the home of his widowed mother and sister yesterday, but no explanation could be offered for the contents of the note. He had been steadily employed in St. Louis for twelve years and never had been in trouble.

Half an hour after the mother received a telegram yesterday announcing the death of her son, the postman handed her a card from him mailed at Mexico, Mo.

"I am on my way to Kansas. Will write you a long letter from there," the postcard ran.

Louis Walbourn was 29 years of age and an art decorator. He had been employed by the Absorene Manufacturing company, No. 2410 North Tenth street, for twelve years, except at intervals when he would leave the city.

He received his wages last Monday evening and went to drinking with friends. Monday night late he left the city without leaving word of his departure at his home. No news had been received from him until yesterday morning, when a message briefly telling of his death by a moving train was received by the mother.

The mother was prostrated last night. The contents of the note found on the body of the brother were about to be recited to the sisters, when she begged that nothing more of the tragic affair be told.

"I don't want to know anything," she pleaded.

In explanation of the note a friend stated that Louis could only have had reference to his mother and sister. He had no police record and was known to be of a quiet disposition, given to drink at intervals.

Before leaving St. Louis, Walbourn had talked among his friends about going to Kansas. That this was his intended destination is evidenced by the postcard to the mother. He had been drinking during the week, and at Mexico, Mo., applied to a physician for medicine. The identification of the body was made possible by the physician's prescription which was in Walbourn's pocket, together with his unsigned note.

Mrs. Walbourn and her daughter will depart this morning for Sedalia, Mo. Orders have been wired that the body be sent there for interment.

The Globe-Democrat of Sunday had the following:

The body of Louis G. Walbourn, the St. Louis man who committed suicide in Mexico, Mo., by throwing himself under a moving switch engine Friday night, will be taken to Sedalia today, where services will be held and burial take place. For some time the body was unidentified. Walbourn was 29 years old and unmarried. He had been in the decorating business for twelve years and had left his home at 4221A Olive street, this city, about a week ago on a business trip to Mexico.

The members of the family will leave this morning for Sedalia, the mother, Mrs. Ella F. Walbourn, going by way of Mexico. There are two brothers and a sister who survive the dead man—Charles H. Walbourn, a conductor on the Frisco, living at the Olive street address; James Walbourn, who does not live in St. Louis, and Daisy Walbourn, residing with her mother and brother at 4221A Olive street.

WED SABBATH EVENING

MR. JAMES ARENSEN AND MISS ROSA KAHN BY RABBI GORDON.

SEVENTY-FIVE GUESTS ATTENDED

Presents Were Numerous and Beautiful—Couple Began Housekeeping Today at 108 South Ohio Street.

A quiet but impressive wedding ceremony was performed at 108 East Jefferson street at 8 o'clock last night, when Rabbi Gordon, of Lincoln, Neb., united in marriage James Aronson, brother of I. Aronson, of this city, and Miss Rosa Kahn, sister of Mrs. I. Aronson.

About one hundred and thirty-five invitations were extended to relatives and friends here and elsewhere, and about seventy-five guests attended, among them being the groom's mother and sister, both of Lincoln, Neb.

The house was artistically decorated for the occasion, and after the ceremony a sumptuous supper was served to the bridal couple and relatives.

Over twenty telegrams of congratulation from relatives and friends were received by the bride party from Albuquerque, N. M., Lincoln and Omaha, Neb., and Kansas City.

The presents included cut glass, silverware, linen and many other beautiful and useful articles.

The music for the occasion was furnished by a colored glee club.

Mr. and Mrs. Aronson went to housekeeping today at 108 South Ohio street, and are receiving the congratulations of their many friends.

"DRY" ST. LOUIS SUNDAY

The County Grand Jury's "Lid" Edict Was Rigidly Enforced.

St. Louis, June 24.—The "lid" edict of the St. Louis county grand jury went into effect yesterday. The indicting of several saloonkeepers, coupled with the action of the liquor dealers in demanding that the excise laws be enforced, put the saloonkeepers in a perplexing situation, but "the lid" so far as is known was on tight everywhere in the county.

In East St. Louis Mayor Cook enforced "the lid" against driving ice wagons on Sunday, but left the lid off in the matter of saloons. Side doors and back doors were open as usual.

Governor Folk had threatened to bring proceedings against the St. Louis county attorneys if they did not enforce the lid, so the grand jury became active and everything was closed.

EIGHT WORKMAN KILLED

Passenger Train Ran Into Coach Containing the Men.

Hartford, Conn., June 24.—Eight workmen were killed and thirty-five injured when a passenger train on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad crashed into the rear of a work train that was backing into the city from New Britain last night at the Sigourney street crossing. Of the injured, two probably will die.

SWEPT BY A TORNADO

MEDICINE LODGE, KANSAS, HAS THREE OF THEM IN ONE DAY.

SEVEN PERSONS WERE INJURED

One Known to Be Missing—Much Damage to Growing Crops Was Inflicted and Many Buildings Were Demolished.

Medicine Lodge, Kas., June 24.—Three distinct tornadoes struck this city late last night, destroying twenty-five houses in the northern part of the town. Seven persons were injured in Medicine Lodge and one is missing, but so far as is known no lives were lost. Several persons are reported injured and much damage was done to property in the path of the tornadoes in the surrounding country.

Mrs. Bell, an aged woman, is missing, and the injured in Medicine Lodge are J. R. McCoy, arm broken; Mrs. J. R. McCoy, ribs broken and skull injured; Mrs. Mary Griffith, hurt internally; Mrs. Morris, arm broken; Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Saury, both badly bruised.

The first of the tornadoes struck the town shortly after 7 o'clock Sunday evening, destroying all telephone and telegraph wires, and causing other damage. Later two other storms came, completing the damage done by the first one. The third storm appeared shortly before midnight. All three came from the northwest and were accompanied by a terrific fall of rain and hail, which did much damage to the growing crops.

The greater part of the damage sustained in Medicine Lodge was in the northern part of town. The residence of United States Senator Long was slightly damaged, but the Long family escaped injury. The residence of Ralph Paxton, Senator Long's secretary, was entirely demolished, but the family escaped.

Other property destroyed includes the Gypsum mill and Santa Fe round house. Mrs. Linle is the most seriously injured. While seeking shelter she was blown into a tree from which she was rescued in an unconscious condition.

FIRST JULY 4 VICTIM

A Little Girl Will Die of a Cannon Cracker's Explosion.

St. Louis, June 24.—Hattie Clark, 5 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Clark, of this place, is the first ante-Fourth victim reported. So serious are her injuries, caused by the explosion of a giant firecracker, that her doctor says she will die. From a boy, the little girl yesterday afternoon got a "cannon" cracker, one of the dynamite loaded variety forbidden by the police. The little girl had the big fire cracker in her right hand and laughed as the sparks fell from the fuse. Suddenly it exploded.

The doctor found that the little girl's left eye had been destroyed, and her face filled with powder driven deep into the skin, and the thumb and three fingers of the right hand blown off. The shock to her brain was so great that she cannot recover.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER

Charge Placed Against Ex-City Marshal of Galena, Kas.

Galena, Kas., June 24.—Ex City Marshal Charles Garner, recently arrested here for alleged complicity in the robbery and murder of L. C. Frick, a second-hand dealer, has been bound over to the district court in the sum of $10,000 on a charge of murder in the first degree.

N. C. Malone, another second-hand dealer, turned state's evidence and accused Garner, R. D. Booth and Ed Jones of committing the crime.

Jones died in the county jail of blood poisoning shortly after the hour set for his preliminary.

Guardian and Curator.

Probate Judge D. E. Kennedy today appointed Peter Kuhn guardian and curator of Ernest and Earl Kuhn.

Will Improve a Residence.

The parishioners of St. Patrick's church are raising a subscription with which to defray the expense of making an addition to the Rev. Fr. McNamee's parochial residence on East Fourth street.

Twenty Minutes to Leave Town.

Jacob Balmer and Fred Smith were arrested last night on the charge of disturbing the peace. Prosecutor Dow dismissed the cases, giving the defendants twenty minutes to leave town.

Put Behind the Bars.

Will Travis, who was fined $1 and costs by Judge Clark last week and failed to pay the fine, was sent to jail today to serve out the time.

OHIO TOWN VOTED "DRY"

ELECTION WAS HELD ON SATURDAY, AND IT WAS EXCEEDINGLY LIVELY.

OVER 4,000 VOTES WERE POLLED

East Liverpool Has 53 Saloons and Now All Must Close—Wellsville Votes on Proposition Tuesday.

East Liverpool, Ohio, June 24.—By a majority of 293 East Liverpool went "dry" at the local law election Saturday.

The contest was one of the most exciting the city has ever witnessed and the vote cast was one of the largest recorded here.

The campaign had been in progress a month, growing more exciting each day until the past week, when little else was given thought.

While the men were voting the women were holding prayer meetings, all-day services being in progress in different parts of the city.

The whole campaign for the "drys" was managed by the church people, and credit for its success rests with Rev. Dr. E. McMillan, of the First Presbyterian church; Rev. C. J. Taggart, of the First U. P. church; Rev. Dr. David Jones, of the Methodist Protestant; Rev. E. P. Wise, of the Christian church, and other local ministers.

The election was quiet, though a suppressed excitement was manifest throughout the day, so alert were the election officers that, it is claimed, some men honestly entitled to vote were excluded from the privilege. It is not unlikely that the election will be contested on this account.

A reward of $500 offered by the "drys" for the detection of frauds or attempts at frauds stimulated every amateur detective, as well as all interested in the election, to unusual exertions, and never was a contest in the city watched more carefully.

East Liverpool is the largest Ohio city that ever went "dry." It has 53 saloons at the present time. Wellsville, four miles away, now a licensed town, votes on the same question tomorrow. The total vote here was 2,294 "dry" and 2,001 "wet."

FIVE MORE VICTIMS

Trains on New York Central Collide With Fatal Results.

Rochester, N. Y., June 24.—Five persons were killed and a score more or less seriously injured last night on the New York Central railroad near Pittsford, when a passenger train crashed into a freight on a sharp curve. The smoking car was telescoped and three of the fifteen passengers instantly killed.

All of the injured, with the exception of Engineer Lyons, are expected to recover.

HAD 14 INCHES OF SNOW

Precipitation of One and One-Half Inches in Montana City.

Butte, Mont., June 24.—Fourteen inches of snow fell in Butte yesterday, but by nightfall the streets were a mass of slush.

The government rain gauge showed a net precipitation of 1½ inches.

SOLD LIQUOR ON SUNDAY

THIS IS THE CHARGE AGAINST CERTAIN SEDALIA SALOON KEEPERS.

A MINISTERS' ALLIANCE REPORT

Is Likely Some of the Men Said to Have Violated the Law Will Find Trouble—Other Business Is Transacted.

Report was made to the Ministers' alliance at its regular weekly meeting today that the law in regard to the sale of liquor on the Sabbath was not observed by all of the saloons of Sedalia yesterday.

On the contrary, report was made that the "lid" was lifted in more than one resort, and in one case in particular the sale of intoxicants was apparent upon and above board. The saloon referred to is located on West Main street.

It was further reported that several saloon men have made no attempt to comply with the ordinance recently passed by the city council, at the instance of the saloon men themselves, requiring that frosted glass, curtains and screens be removed from the doors and windows of all resorts on the Sabbath, so that persons on the outside may have an unobstructed view of the entire interior of the premises.

"I am sorry for this," remarked one minister to the Democrat-Sentinel this morning, "for it certainly means trouble, and most likely serious trouble, for the guilty parties."

No warrants were issued today for the arrest of any of the parties alleged to have sold intoxicants yesterday, but it is understood the evidence in the different cases is being prepared and it is possible other licenses may be revoked.

At today's meeting of the Alliance it was decided to give every possible encouragement to the Chautauqua that opens here July 18 and continues for fourteen consecutive days.

Special action was taken looking to getting out a good crowd for the lecture at the First M. E. church, of the night of July 6 by Judge Artman, of Indiana, who recently rendered the famous anti-saloon license decision.

A committee consisting of Revs. Parsons, Lesher and Caskey was appointed to arrange for a series of union meetings Sunday nights during the summer.

A committee consisting of Revs. Rudy and Martin was appointed to arrange for the annual picnic of the Alliance. Both committees will report at the next meeting of the Alliance on Monday, July 1.

GOT MEN HIGH UP?

Pumors of What the Denver Federal Grand Jury Did.

Denver, June 24.—Bench warrants based on the indictments returned by the federal grand jury yesterday will be issued today, it was authoritatively stated, and until they are issued no names of the persons indicted will be made public.

It is hinted in reliable quarters that the indicted persons include men of high business standing in Colorado and Wyoming, and also in Milwaukee and St. Louis.

Although the grand jury has practically concluded its present sitting, the work of the immense secret service force now making headquarters in this city will continue indefinitely.

LOVING TRIAL BEGINS

Another Case Where the "Unwritten Law" Will Be Invoked.

Houston, Va., June 24.—The trial of former Judge W. G. Loving, of Newton county, for the murder of Theodore Estes, son of Sheriff M. K. Estes, began here today.

Judge Loving shot and killed Estes the day following a buggy ride which the latter had taken with his 19-year-old daughter.

The plea of the defense will be the unwritten law. Judge Loving is backed by Thomas F. Ryan, of whose West Virginia estate he is the overseer. The trial promises some interesting developments.

Pat McGinley Heard From.

Pat McGinley, who recently returned to his old home in Ireland, after a twenty years' residence in Sedalia, is now engaged in the insurance business in the Emerald Isle, and a legion of friends in the Prairie Queen will join the Democrat-Sentinel in wishing him all possible success.

The Score Was 5 to 4.

In a rather uninteresting game of baseball at Windsor, Sunday afternoon, the Missouri Pacific shops' team defeated the Windsor team by a score of 5 to 4.

Fined $1 and Costs.

James Mehan was fined $1 and costs by Judge Clark today for disturbing the peace.

A BATTLE IS "ON" TODAY

THE LIQUOR QUESTION IS THE ABSORBING TOPIC OVER AT PAULDING, OHIO.

BEEN "DRY" THERE FOR 2 YEARS

Claims That Storerooms Have Been Deserted, Business Is Bad and the People Are Ready for a Change.

Paulding, Ohio, June 24.—To thirst or not to thirst, is that which must be decided in this city today.

For two years the town ostensibly has been "dry," but it mattered not to some, as evinced by prize packages brought home from surrounding oases.

Now what is apparently a majority demands an "open town," and to this end the liquor interests are working tooth and nail.

Against this end are arrayed the combined forces of the churches here. The battle promises to be bitter.

Since the town was declared "dry," two years ago, several business places have been deserted and the stores still remain empty.

Admitting this, but declaring such a condition is better than that attending liquor traffic, religious organizations have been holding meetings almost daily to combat the saloonists.

The closing addresses against the "wets" was delivered Sunday afternoon and night by F. L. Dustman, editor of the Toledo Blade, and Mayor Brennan, of Xenia. Among those who have spoken is Dr. Rutledge, the Cleveland divine.

THE UNKNOWN DEAD MAN

Almost Certain That He Resided at Mattoon, Ill.

It was learned almost definitely today that the unknown young man killed west of Dresden Saturday by Missouri Pacific train No. 6 was from Mattoon, Ill. Mr. Will Clifford, of the firm of Clifford Bros., said to the Democrat-Sentinel Sunday:

"I have just read in your paper of the killing near Dresden. That man was in our place early Saturday morning. I noticed him particularly because of his red hair and eyes of unusual blue."

"He told me that he was from Mattoon, Ill., and that he and the man with him, who was from Louisville, Ky., were on their way to the Kansas harvest fields. Each man had money, but of course I do not know how much."

The dead man was buried at Dresden by the county, but what became of the Louisville man who was with him at Clifford Bros.' is not known.

BOAT ROCKED, FOUR DROWN

A Pleasure Trip on Lake Muskegon Turns to Tragedy.

Muskegon, Mich., June 24.—Gus Hammer, Ola Peterson, Edia Olin and Anna Johnson, all residents of this city, were drowned in Muskegon lake yesterday afternoon.

The quartette hired a rowboat for a pleasure trip on the lake and it was capsized. The accident is said to be due to one of the party rocking the boat.

HAYWOOD'S SIDE BEGINS

CLARENCE DARROW, OF DEFENDANT'S COUNSEL, MAKES THE OPENING STATEMENT.

BLAME MURDERS TO PINKERTONS

Says That Detectives Were Hired to Commit All Kinds of Crimes and Outrages and Lay Them to Federation.

Boise, Idaho, June 24.—When the Haywood trial opened this morning Clarence Darrow, of counsel for the defense, made the opening statement. He said:

"The defendant is charged nominally with the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg, but the state has told you that the case rests upon a giant conspiracy, of which the defendant among others is a part."

"The state's attorney has told you that the murder of Steunenberg was but an incident of that campaign. They have told you that the Western Federation of Miners was an organization to commit murder, to control politics, to hire lawyers and other criminal things."

Continuing, he said: "As soon as the Western Federation of Miners was born the mine owners went about to destroy it, and as a chief means of destruction they hired the Pinkerton Detective agency, with one McParland at its head. We will show you that this agency hired detectives and placed them in positions of responsibility as presidents and secretaries of local unions; that these hired men constantly advised the miners to strike, and that when a strike was on counsel was given. They did it at Cripple Creek; they did it at Telluride, and at many other places."

He declared that every illegitimate child born west of the Mississippi river had been hurried to Denver and laid at the door of the Western Federation of Miners. He was still talking when a recess was taken.

"CHINKS" MUST MAKE GOOD

Secretary Straus Is Reorganizing the Inspection Service.

Washington, June 24.—Secretary Straus of the commerce department is making a record as a reorganizer.

He is now shaking up the Chinese inspection service in a manner that is bound to bring results as favorable as those which attended the recent reorganization of the steamboat inspection service.

TRAINS MEET HEAD ON

Four Passengers Are Dead and Eight Badly Injured.

Rochester, N. Y., June 24.—Four persons are known to have been killed, three more are thought to be dead and eight were badly injured in a wreck last night one mile east of Pittsford, on the Auburn branch of the New York Central.

The train met a freight, head-on.

REGARDING NEXT STRIKE

President of Telegraphers' Union Says It Will Be in Larger Center.

San Francisco, Cal., June 24.—President Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, said last night that he had issued no order for a strike at El Paso, Texas.

"The next strike," said Small, "will be at a larger center than El Paso."

Will Go to Kanass City.

Clyde Barker returned at noon today from Kansas City, but will return there the latter part of this week to accept a position with Ricksecker & Son's cigar company.

Mrs. Cloney to Entertain.
Mrs. W. H. Cloney will be hostess to a party of friends at her home Thursday morning, complimentary to Miss Seawright, who is the guest of her aunt, Mrs. W. J. Crouch.

THEORIES OF TAXATION.
It is a comparatively easy matter to find new objects of taxation; but it is exceedingly difficult to so adjust tax rates that the burden will be equally distributed among the mass of tax payers. One consequence of this difficulty, the cost of government in all parts of the world is largely defrayed out of revenues raised by indirect taxation, not because such taxation is just, but because tax payers pay it without knowing it in the increased price of taxed commodities.
The man who grows when he pays his direct school tax or road tax wears his taxed shirt without thought of complaint. He has no quarrel with government extravagances that lead to no direct loosening of his purse strings.

Possibly there is no fairer tax
than the income tax, but the difficulty of ascertaining the exact amount of incomes, the heavy cost of such as-certainment and of collection and the unpopularity of the necessary inquisition into everybody's private affairs combine to delay the imposition of such a tax. The taxation of the unearned increment of properties that increase in value by reason of the advancing worth of surrounding or adjoining properties, to which enhancement their owners have in no manner contributed, is undoubtedly equitable.
The underlying principle is acknowledged and partially enforced by the means of recurring assessments for taxing purposes.

But assessments are notoriously faulty. The plan lately adopted in some German and English municipalities of reckoning the unearned increment by the increased value at the time of sale or transfer, as compared with the last previous sale (deducting the cost of any added improvement) appears to work admirably. The rate of taxation ranges from 5 per cent to 20 per cent of unearned increment, being ratably adjusted to the percentage of difference between the price of purchase and the price obtained at sale.

This is a partial application of the single tax theory of Henry George.
It is said to work admirably in the checking of land speculation and the encouraging of suburban improvement in the neighborhood of towns and cities where growth is impeded
by speculation and holding of uninproved land. There are many towns in Missouri, where a tax on unearned increment would be of the greatest benefit. It is only fair that the wealth the commonality creates should be made to contribute fairly to the necessary expenditures of the commonality for public purposes.

CLOSES THE JAPANESE IN-CIDENT.
The news from Tokio that Amba-
sador Aoki is to be retained at Washington is an excellent commentary on the wisdom and restraint of the Japanese people. It means, in effect that the government's decision not to make a fool of itself by insisting on impossible concessions from the United States or by causing trouble over the San Francisco brawl has finally met the approval of the people and that amicable relations between the two countries are to be preserved. Ambassador Aoki has taken a statesman-like view of the situation. He has frankly informed his government that the peculiar form of our government, differentiating the powers of the national government from those of the states, and conferring upon the latter a large degree of independence, will not permit Japan to press demands upon Washington for the grant to the Japanese such privileges and rights as public sentiment at home might insist upon and regard as equitable.

This fortunate termination of what promised to be a troublesome and annoying dispute with Japan will be received with much satisfaction in the United States, and with high regard for the breadth of Japanese diplomacy.

FORAKER IS FIRING.
Senator Foraker discusses the evidence in the Brownsville case as seriously as though the people cared much about it. He is convinced that the citizens "shot up" their own town, but then, he did not need this investigation to convince him of it,
for he was convinced of it to begin with.

His conclusions are nearly as impressive as those of the magistrate who discharged the prisoner charged with mayhem on the ground that he believed the complaining witness had biten off his own nose. The senator is wasting time. It is true that there are some fifty thousand colored voters in Ohio, but the great majority of them are going to vote the ticket of the g. o. p., whatever it is. The presidency of the United States is not going to be determined in Brownsville, Texas.

It is said that the crops of corn,
cotton, tobacco, vegetables and fruits are very poor down south. But the crop of dark horses for the presidential nomination is flourishing. Culberson, Hoke Smith, John W. Daniel, Congressman John Sharp Williams and others are all mentioned as good presidential timber. Nobody doubts the soundness of their democracy or their qualifications for the office.
What is wanted, however, is some one nominated for the office who can win.

District Attorney Jerome proposes to free Abe Hummel, serving a term in prison for extortion and charged with perjury, because of the testimony he gave in the Thaw trial. This is a novel, but effective way of rewarding crime and protecting the criminal. It also increases the public estimate of Mr. Jerome's unfitness for the high office he holds.

Just as General Porter notifies the peace congress that the United States reserves the right to bring up the question of the limitation of armaments, contracts are let at Washington for two of the largest battleships ever built. How's this?

What would follow armed resistance to federal authority in this country such as is taking place in France illustrates the difference between a real and a pseudo republic.

CAT AND MISTRESS DIED

THEN THE HUSBAND OF THE WO-MAN WAS PLACED UN-

A MONEY LOSS UNBALANCED MIND

Had It Not Been for This Fact It Is Not Believed Harrison Hatfield
Would Have Committed
Crime He Did.

Williamson, W. Va., June 24.—
Sheriff E. E. Musick, of Mingo county, Saturday evening arrived in the city, having in charge Harrison Hatfield, who is charged with poisoning
his wife June 15th.

It is said that on his way home
from the federal court session at Charleston the previous week he per-chased a vial of strychnine. Neighbors quote him as having said he had warned his wife to leave by 12 o'clock Saturday, the 15th. At 3 that afternoon she was a corpse.

It is said that the strychnine was placed in food which Mrs. Hatfield took at dinner. She gave a cat some portions from her plate and shortly afterward she became ill.

The cat went into convulsions and died. Mrs. Hatfield also died in convulsions. Physicians who arrived too late to save her gave it as their opinion that she had been poisoned.

The stomach of the woman was taken to Cincinnati to have a chemical analysis made. The stomach of the cat was also taken.

A few weeks ago Hatfield lost
$2,800 which was forwarded to him
by registered letter. On the night
the letter reached the Horsepen postoffice the office burned and it was claimed the letter containing the money was burned. The postal authorities made an investigation and Postmaster Trent, it is claimed, confessed that he got the money. He is now in jail.

Many believe that Hatfield worried over the loss of the money until he became demented. He is about 50 years of age.

He is a cousin of "Bad Anse" and the notorious "Cap" Hatfield, of feud fame.

HE TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

Climax Was When Walter's Wife
Fired the Cook.

Madison, Ill., June 24.—Benjamin Walters, a local merchant, committed suicide as the culmination of a series of domestic difficulties, the climax being the act of his wife in discharging the family cook.

Mrs. Amanda Deleplain, the cook, says that twenty minutes before Walters shot himself he begged her to disregard his wife's authority and retain her position in the household.
Overhearing a quarrel Mr. and Mrs. Walters, she reconsidered her intention to yield to Mr. Walters' request, and packed her belongings and left the place.

The Child Had Lain for Two Days,

Ashtabula, Ohio, June 24.—While walking through Edgewood cemetery
Sexton Talcott heard an infant crying, and, following the sound, he found a three-weeks-old baby wedged between two logs on a hillside, down which it had been thrown.

By marks on the clothing its parentage was traced to a young woman who has left town. Developments disclose that beyond question the child had been where it was found for forty-eight hours. It is in the infirmary

EDWARD HOTCHKISS' TROUBLES

Detained in Quarantine in New York
City All Because He Had Not
Traveled as a First-Class Passenger.

New York, June 24.—Edward Hotchkiss, of Oberlin, Ohio, the second cabin passenger of the Ward Liner Havana, who was detained on board that vessel under police guard
because he demanded that he be accorded the same privilege as a first cabin passenger when the Havana
arrived in quarantine, was released
Saturday morning by the health authorities.

Mr. Hotchkiss left the Havana at 10 o'clock, he having been pronounced free from all symptoms of yellow fever by the quarantine doctor, who examined him earlier in the morning.

"It's a queer state of affairs," said
Mr. Hotchkiss, as he left the Ward Line pier. "It's easy to marry. It's not hard to be divorced, but it's mighty hard for an honest American citizen who saved $20 by traveling second cabin to get home."

Mr. Hotchkiss went to the New Amsterdam hotel at Twenty first street and Fourth avenue. He still insists that he will go to the courts to find out if it is legal for the quarantine authorities to compel second cabin passengers to go to Hoffman island for observation when they permit first cabin passengers to land because the latter are considered
"more responsible."

FIRST HUSBAND'S PHOTOS

Beier Ordered Her to Burn, but the Judge Says She Needn't.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 24.—"A man marrying a widow cannot compel her to burn photographs of her former husband," is the gist of a decision by Judge Strimple, who granted a divorce to Marie Beier from Ernest Beier.

When Mrs. Beier remarried in 1904 she was still in mourning for her first husband, who had been dead
three years.
"First my husband tore photographs of my former husband from the walls," Mrs. Beier testified. "Then he forced me to burn them. He was continually scolding me for having been married before. He compelled me to burn all of my mourning clothes."

Detroit, Mich., June 24.—Twelve-thinks the boarder has kidnaped her.

Kohn Wilchinski moved from De-

left his daughter Annie with an uncle. Since then he has been seeking to have a friend bring the girl to him.
Sunday a boarder, whose first name is Henry and whose last name is unknown, came to Detroit and agreed to take Annie to her father. He took the girl from her uncle Monday, but failed to arrive in Bellevue. The police are searching for him.

PROFIT IN MISSOURI BEE

Apiarists Make 100 Per Cent a Year On the Investment.

Columbia, Mo., June 24.—According to the last United States census only three states, Texas, California and New York, exceed Missouri in the total of honey produced. Missouri has something like three-fourths of a million dollars invested in bees and apiary supplies and the total annual product of honey and wax amounts to from $500,000 to $750,000.

For the protection of the bee owners, the last legislature authorized a state bee inspector, and Mr. M. E. Darby, of Springfield, has been appointed. His services may be secured by making application to him, giving evidence that the bees are infected with any contagious disease.

As he is in the employ of the state the beekeepers will not be called upon for any part of the expenses.

HE CAPTURED YOUNGER

G. W. WALRATH AIDED IN THE ARREST OF NORTHFIELD BANK ROBBERS.

HE NOW LIVES AT SAVANNAH, MO

Member of Posse That Pursued and Surrounded Bandits After Famous Raid in Minnesota—An Incident of the Trial.

Interesting facts concerning the capture and sentence of the Younger boys for the Northfield, Minn., bank robbery are related by G. W. Walrath, of Savannah, Mo.

At the time of the robbery thirty-two years ago, Mr. Walrath lived at Morristown, Minn., fifteen miles east of Northfield. Before the news of the robbery and the killing of Haywood, cashier of the bank, had reached Morristown, the five surviving members of the band had passed through the main streets of the town unmolested. The pursuers, whose numbers were being constantly augmented, were joined by Mr. Walrath and his hired man.

The robbers finally entered timber, where they were surrounded by their pursuers. Capture seemed certain. A thunder storm came up. The pursuers became demoralized and after the storm the robbers were found to have escaped. It was at this place, Mr. Walrath says, that Frank and Jesse James, who were members of the gang, disguised themselves as farmers and passed through the ranks of the besiegers. The Youngers were again surrounded, this time in a tamarack, about forty miles east of Northfield. Here they surrendered. They placed a white handkerchief on a stick and the sheriff and several deputies went in and took them prisoners. Mr. Walrath was of this party and personally took Bob Younger prisoner. One of Bob's thumbs was shot away and an arm had been shattered by a rifle ball. The surrender was due to Bob's condition. Cole Younger had been hit over the eye by a spent rifle ball which had lodged beneath the skin, causing a knot as large as a walnut.

The Youngers stated that Frank and Jesse James had advocated the killing of Bob Younger by their own party to insure the escape of the rest of them. The brothers refused to accept the plan, preferring to run the risk of capture.

Mr. Walrath later was foreman of the grand jury which indicted the Youngers. Among the witnesses before that body was a young woman who was driving to Northfield the day of the robbery to visit her sister. A short distance out of Northfield she passed the seven robbers, all attired in long linen dusters. They doffed their hats and greeted her pleasantly, and she remarked that she was not acquainted with any of them, but was sure from their behavior that they were perfect gentlemen. Shortly after her arrival at her sister's home, which was above her brother-in-law's store, she heard firing, and on going to the window she saw one of the "gentlemen" she had met standing in front of the bank. In his hand was a revolver, which he pointed at her with the command, "Take in your head."

She obeyed, but immediately looked out again, and the performance was repeated four or five times. Later she was taken to the jail and identified the "gentleman" with the gun as Cole Younger. Afterward he admitted his identity to her, but said: "I wouldn't have shot a lady." The Youngers pleaded guilty and by arrangement took a sentence of ninety-nine years in the penitentiary. "The occasion of the sentencing of the brothers was a trying one," says Mr. Walrath.

"The three brothers were brought into court shackled and handcuffed. The sheriff removed their irons and when they stood before the judge to receive their sentence women were crying and tears were in the eyes of many men. The judge was so affected that several minutes elapsed before he could sufficiently control himself to pass sentence."

Mr. Walrath became acquainted with the Youngers during their incarceration at Fairbault, where they were sentenced. He describes them as being strong and robust men, of very pleasant disposition. They were all fine looking. There were seven in the band at the time of the robbery. Two were killed on the streets of Northfield, two escaped and the Youngers, three in number, were captured. Bob died in prison. Jim died soon after he was pardoned. Cole Younger is living in Missouri.

Mr. Walrath entered Andrew county, Mo., in May, 1891, locating at Rea, where he was president of a local bank. He moved to Savannah in 1900. He is nearing his 81st birthday anniversary, but is strong and active. He looks after the affairs of his large suburban home, besides personally attending to numerous financial and landed interests. While in Rice county, Minnesota, he served four years as county assessor and served two terms in the Minnesota legislature.

Impossible for Elks to Get Lost in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, June 24.—Plans for the big convention and reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, which will be held in this city during the week beginning July 15th, are rapidly shaping themselves into perfection.

The local committee has raised an entertainment fund of $100,000.00 and the city of Philadelphia has appropriated $50,000.00 for the construction of a magnificent court of honor and the illumination of her public buildings.

In order to assure visitors ample opportunities of finding their way about the city, the committee have arranged to establish, in prominent localities, one hundred bureaus of information.

Each bureau will be designated by a large white flag inscribed with a red question mark.

Old Toomey's Will

By Joseph Powell.

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

The lawyer said it was the strangest will he had ever helped to draw up. He felt he owed an apology to the relations of the deceased, gathered in old Toomey's parlor after the funeral, for its phraseology.

There were quite two dozen anxious eyes upon the little lawyer at that moment. There was Shaun Kelly and old Regan, Susan Mullen, Frank Murtagh, Tom Gaynor and as many more again, all expectant of something out of the pile Toomey was known to have received some years before, under the will of an American uncle. Some said it was $100,000, some $200,000. Toomey had spent very little of it.

His nearest relation was Tom Gaynor, who—so it was said—expected to come in for the bulk of the American hoard. He was a proud, hard old man, with a large farm of land, wealthy, as wealth goes in Ireland, but as grasping of the penny as if he had nothing. His pride was significantly displayed in the way he treated the suitors for the hand of his pretty daughter Kitty.

Kitty Gaynor had fixed her affections on the poorest of her suitors, Frank Murtagh. He also was a relation of the dead man. On the death of his parents Toomey had taken him into his house out of charity, and had never ceased to remind him of it.

But all suspense would soon be at an end, for the lawyer had commenced to read the will.

Various bequests were made until Frank Murtagh and Tom Gaynor were the only persons left unmentioned. Gaynor was the man, all felt sure.

The lawyer had paused to cough and take a little water. Then he continued:

"And to that sorry-may-care blackguard, Frank Murtagh, I bequeath the house and land about it on condition that he never sells it for less than £200 for the far field, £500 for the near one and the house, which is five times more than any man in his senses would think of giving. My old clothes can go to that stingy niggard Tom Gaynor. I'll make him remember that he treated me like a dog when I was poor and fawned on me when he thought I was rich. And there's my old bamboo stick in the corner that I leave to Frank Murtagh, the lazy rogue, to belt the mean old fellow off these premises any time he dare show his nose here, house or land. I make this duty a condition of Frank Murtagh's enjoying what I leave him."

When the lawyer and mourners had departed, Frank was left in the sole possession of his newly-acquired property and his thoughts. His mind naturally reverted to Kitty. Would this little stroke of fortune bring her nearer to him? He was forced to admit that it would not. He was still very far from the standard of competency required by old Tom. His eyes suddenly fell upon the bamboo stick which leaned against the wall in a corner of the room and he could not restrain a smile as he thought of its association with old Tom in the will.

"Begar," said Frank, as he took it up and lashed the air, "that'll come down heavy on old Tom's back if he dares show his nose in here."

But neither Frank nor the rest of old Toomey's relations would have thought Tom's demeanor at all strange had they known what was passing in the old gentleman's mind at that moment.

"I can laugh at the whole of them, Toomey and all," he said to himself. "Lord have mercy on the old ruffian's soul, but I can see him as plain now as I saw him a month ago in the dusk of the evening, dragging across the iron pot and digging a hole near that tree on the hill and burying it there, thinking that no one would ever get his money. Ha, ha, Pat Toomey, the very man ye hate the most will get it."

Forgetting the dead man's warning, he crossed the gate and entered the field. Frank perceived the movement from the kitchen window, and mindful of his testamentary obligations, he snatched up the bamboo stick and charged down on old Tom, making wild shouts as he ran.

The whirling bamboo recalled certain terms of old Toomey's will to Tom's mind. He turned tail, scrambled over the gate and was outside the zone of danger in no time.

"Ye deserve the greatest credit," cried he gaily, when Frank had reached the gate. "Ye do yer jooty like a man."

"Begar, it's a terrible hard way to have to trate a neighbor," said Frank with an air of apology, "ould Toomey was a very queer man."

Tom dismissed the matter with a cheery laugh, and they parted. After supper Tom sat by the fire scheming as to the best means of becoming possessed of the buried treasure. The only course left was to buy the land. It gave him a chill to think of the prohibitive price old Toomey had put upon it in the will. But after all, what signified it? It would merely be £200 in return for thousands. He must see Frank at once.

As he came to this conclusion the latch was raised and Frank entered. He had hoped to find Tom out and Kitty alone. But Kitty and the maid had gone to bed.

"Just the man I wanted to see," said Tom, and after a shorticker, the far field became the property of Tom.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

In Use For Over 30 Years.

THE CASTORIA COMPANY, 77 MURRAY STREET, NEW YORK CITY.

When his footsteps had died away, old Tom, creeping cautiously into the stable, emerged with a spade.

In a moment he was climbing the hill. He remembered gauging the place where Toomey had buried the treasure. After laboring for half an hour, his spade rang upon iron. He knew he had the pot. His breath left him in the excitement of the moment.

Gasping, struggling, stumbling across the field, Tom reached home, more dead than alive. Then with remarkable deliberation, considering his agitation, he untied the rope that bound the sacking.

Tom glared vacantly at the sight that met his eye.

"Sand, stones," was all he was able to ejaculate for a moment.

He turned out the contents of the pot.

"Blur an ouns," he said, when he was able to speak. "Toomey was the trickiest ould scoundrel in Ireland. Bad cess to him," and old Tom went off to bed cursing.

When the first pang of his disappointment was over, the lesser pain of the loss of his £200 called for attention. He knew Frank to be a simple good-natured fellow.

With this idea in his mind, he set out after breakfast to call on Frank. Frank wondered what he wanted. Was it something about Kitty? He was grievously disappointed when a minute later Tom plunged into the business about the cheque.

Despair chilled Frank's blood for a moment. He had hoped that the money would give him the start that would enable him in time to claim Kitty. In a moment, however, the cloud had disappeared from his good-natured soul. He walked over to a cupboard in the corner of the room, pulled out a wooden box, drew therefrom the cheque and handed it across to Tom Gaynor.

"More power to ye," cried Tom. "Ye're the best fella in Ireland. Tell me if I can do anything for ye. If I can, command me, command me."

"Give me Kitty, then," returned Frank with brusque boldness.

"We all know," said the old man, "that ould Toomey never spent the money he got by the American uncle. Shure it's about this house it must be. Have ye ever searched for it?"

"I have, indeed," returned Frank. "Well, then, look here," said old Tom. "I'll tell ye what I'll do. Keep up your search for it and I'll give ye Kitty when ye find it."

While old Tom had been talking, Frank's eyes, wandering about the room, had suddenly lighted upon the bamboo stick.

"Blur an ouns," he cried, jumping up and running over to the corner for the stick. "What have I been thinking of at all! Get out of this, Tom Gaynor. Remember the words of the will, man. Shure I'll lose the place for letting ye stay here."

"Are ye gone?" cried Frank, turning round and yavering the stick menacingly.

Luckily for Tom, the gate of the yard was open, and he reached safety with barely a yard to spare.

As Tom drew up in the middle of the road, gasping for breath, Frank held out the stick, broken across the middle.

"Begar! ould Toomey's bamboo is gone for," said he. "But what's this here?" peering into the slit. "The stick, broke and all as it is, is laid together by something inside the choobee—paper, by the look of it."

Frank thrust his fingers and drew out a roll of papers.

"I wonder what it can mane?" "Mane!" cried old Tom, who had taken up the roll and opened it. "Why, it manes that these are Bank of England notes, fifty, ave hundred pound notes there are in my fist this blessed minute."

The pair stood there gasping at each other.

"Then, this must be ould Toomey's American money," said Frank, and awe gaped from his eyes as he gazed from the split bamboo to the precious pieces of paper in Tom's hand.

"That's just what it is," cried Tom. "Frank, my boy, I congratulate ye."

"And — and — and —" murmured Frank, his voice broken with agitation.

Old Tom cut him short with a laugh. "Don't offer to say another word," said he. "Kitty's yours, and may God bless ye both."

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased. Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose. Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a Home of Swamp-Root pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

MADE A FAIR LADY FAINT

THE SHOOTING OF MEASLY YELLOW CANINE OVER AT LIMA, OHIO.

THIS WAS NOT ALL BY GOOD DEAL

Spoiled Merchant's Sale to the Lady, His Arrest Followed, and Then There Were Other Stirring "Events."

Lima, Ohio, June 22.—A canine, and a yellow one at that, has created a furore in municipal circles here; has caused two fines, threatens the discharge of the sanitary police force, and has imbroiled the mayor and chief of police in a conflict with a prominent business man.

The dog caused it all.

He was of the "yellow" brand just a little streaked and was alone and friendless. After trudging the city's streets the dog was reported, and under escort of a patrolman, was taken back of the city building and shot.

The shooting occurred in the rear of Woolery & Remseyer's store. Inside a society woman was looking at wall paper. At the shot and splash of blood the lady shrieked and fell in a faint, the proprietor's arms being forced into use. She didn't buy anything and Mr. Woolery was "sore."

He informed the police department that the dead dog was lying at his door and the police informed the sanitary department, but the latter did not respond.

Woolery grew angrier as the dog remained throughout the long day, and Saturday, with a scoop shovel, he picked up the dog and carried it to the city building, where he tossed it bodily into the chief's private office.

Chief Mills solicited aid from the city attorney, who drew an affidavit against Woolery, charging him with committing a nuisance. The mayor fined Woolery, who immediately proceeded to take action for damages against both city officers and to have both the chief and the sanitary policemen ousted. The fight still rages, though the mayor later remitted the fine.

Using Cold Potatoes.

Cold mashed potato is often wasted, yet it need not be. It may be used with hot milk and celery seasoning for soup. Add salt, pepper, a little chopped parsley and a bit of thickening and some butter. It comes in very handy if anyone returns home tired and wants a bowl of something hot quickly.

Again, cold mashed potato may be made into a cake and browned in butter. Season well with red pepper and salt.

Another way is to press the potato in a sheet an inch thick, cut it into strips an inch wide and about three inches long. Have ready one saucer with melted butter in it and another with a beaten egg. Also have ready a greased pan or two. Lift the potato strips, one at a time, and dip in the melted butter and then into the egg and lay in the pans. Shake on salt and pepper. Put in the oven for from ten to 12 minutes. If wished, have some minced parsley scattered over the top. Serve at once.

Laying the Silver.

For a formal dinner place the silver as follows: On the left of the plates place the forks, laid in the order in which the dishes requiring them will be served, starting from the outside. The knives and oyster fork if the latter are served, are placed on the right of the plate, the soup spoons in front of the plate or with the knives at the right. The bowls of forks and spoons should be right side up, the edges of the knives turned toward the plate. Large spoons are not laid on the table, the maid placing one when necessary in the dish. Salt and pepper boxes are placed at the corners, within easy reach of every two people.

Caramel for Soups.

Put into a porcelain saucepan about one-half pound of granulated sugar and a tablespoonful of water, stir it constantly over the fire until it has a bright dark brown color, being very careful not to let it burn or blacken. Then add a teaspoonful of water and a little salt. Let it boil a few moments longer, cool and strain it. Put it away in a close-corked bottle and it is always ready for coloring soup.

Tomato Soup.

One quart can of tomatoes, one onion cut up, six cloves, one quart of water. Let all stew together for half an hour, then strain through a sieve and return to the kettle. Add two tablespoonfuls of corn, one of butter; pepper and salt to taste. Moisten two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch or flour and when tomato liquor is boiling pour in gradually, stirring all the time. Boil until smooth.

The Story Hour Today.

About forty children assembled at the Art room at the public library this morning, on the occasion of the weekly "story hour," and were splendidly entertained by Miss Margaret Curran, who told stories of King Arthur and the Round Table. Miss Curran evidently knows children, and is possessed of the happy faculty of knowing how to entertain them. Never did she succeed more admirably than this morning.

CHILD'S GRAVE WAS DUG

IN HER STEPFATHER'S YARD BEFORE SHE WAS MURDERED BACK EAST.

VICTIM WAS ONLY FIVE YEARS OLD

Irwin A. Lewis Paled When He Was Accused of the Crime, but Emphatically Insisted That He Was Innocent.

Avondale, Pa., June 24.—The body of little Mary Newlin was found buried in the yard of her stepfather's home, two miles from this place, at 11 o'clock Saturday morning.

Irwin A. Lewis, the stepfather, is under arrest, charged with the murder of the five-year-old child.

The child had been strangled to death with a piece of tarred rope, such as is used by farmers in tying wheat. This had been doubly knotted and was sunk into the flesh of the little girl's neck when the body was found. Over her head a burlap bag had been drawn.

The accused man, compelled to stand beside the grave in which he is accused of having buried the child, stood the ordeal without flinching, although he completely broke down when District Attorney Maceleer accused him of the crime.

Near one of the little girl's hands was her mouth organ. This she had apparently clutched tightly in her hand up to the last, and the fact that it lay in the grave beside her is taken as proof the child was murdered beside the hole her murderer had dug in the yard of his home, or perhaps had been placed in the hole before she was quite dead and while she still had strength to hold the plaything.

When Mr. Maceleer, several hours before, was informed by two members of the searching party that the little girl's body had been found he turned upon the stepfather an accused him of the crime.

The man's face grew the shade of chalk. He tried to control his bloodless lips, and finally stammered:

"No, no! My God, no! I didn't do it."

George Timanus, a local constable, placed Lewis under arrest, and, taking him in a wagon, led the way at a smart gallop to the scene of the crime, the pretty little farm house of Irwin Lewis, which lies a quarter of a mile across the field from his father's house.

There Lewis was again confronted with the fierce accusation of the district attorney, who from the first suspected murder in the "kidnapping" case, which the stepfather of the child had so earnestly advocated as the cause of the little girl's disappearance.

Mr. Maceleer, in the questions he rained upon the frightened man, taxed him with hatred of his little stepdaughter. In suspecting Lewis of the murder of little Mary his most

The Biggest Kind of a Change
that Ever Happened to Any Magazine Has Happened This Month to

THE SCRAP BOOK

THE SCRAP BOOK for July is issued in two sections—two complete magazines, each with its own cover and its own table of contents. One of these sections is an ALL-ILLUSTRATED magazine; the other is an ALL-FICTION magazine. Each is a mammoth magazine in itself. The one presents an overwhelming array of human interest articles and illustrations; the other an enormous tonnage of fiction—160 pages of absorbing stories.

Ten years ago I created a new type of magazine—the ALL-FICTION magazine. Now I am creating another distinct type—the ALL-ILLUSTRATED magazine. This is the age of specialization. The conventional magazine, with its smattering of illustrations and its smattering of fiction and its smattering of special articles, doesn't contain enough of any one thing to make it satisfying. The ALL-FICTION magazine and the ALL-ILLUSTRATED magazine, joined together as a unit, strengthen each other, and make something really big and forceful and convincing.

The Only Way to Know a Thing is to Try It

The two-section magazine idea is brand-new to the world. It is not quite new with me, however, as I have given it, at odd times, four or five years of thought. It first came into my mind in response to a desire to couple, in some way, the strength of the all-fiction magazine with the illustrated features of the conventional magazine. It has been a difficult problem to work out. Now that the idea is perfected, I wish to see what there is in it. It looks to me to be very good, but the only way to know a thing is to try it.

Two Magazines for a Quarter—Easy Money

The price of this two-part magazine is twenty-five cents, which is equal to twelve and one-half cents a magazine. Most magazines which were selling at ten cents have been advanced to fifteen cents. THE SCRAP BOOK in two parts means two magazines for twenty-five cents against thirty cents for two fifteen cent magazines.

important clew had lain in the fact of Mrs. Lewis' past.

More than five years ago she was employed in the Chester county asylum for the insane. There she met Lawrence Butler, an attendant. They were to have been married, but Butler shortly afterward departed for the south, after both he and Edna Newlin, as she was before her marriage to Lewis, were compelled to leave the employ of the hospital. She returned to her father's home, where her child was born.

Butler wrote for her to join him in the south, but she did not take up his offer, and nothing more has been heard from the man, who is now living in Burnsville, N. C.

Lewis and Edna Newlin had been child sweethearts and he knew all the facts of her life. Five months ago he married her and agreed to take care of the fatherless child.

TAFT MAY SPEAK IN JOPLIN

On Way to Oklahoma in August the Secretary Will Stop.

Washington, June 24.—On his way to address the Oklahoma republican state convention in August, Secretary Taft probably will speak in Joplin. If he concludes, as now seems probable, to make the Joplin speech, it will be a political address devoted to live topics. Much pressure has been brought to bear in Missouri to induce him to make a political speech in Missouri and he has tentatively consented to do so.

Secretary Taft left last afternoon for New Haven, where he will deliver an address before the Yale law school. Tuesday the secretary will go to Oyster Bay to confer with the president about Cuban and Philippine affairs, and will return to the Yale commencement Wednesday. He will come to Washington Thursday and probably will remain here until July 1, when he will go to his cottage at Murray Bay, on the St. Lawrence river.

"We haven't any deviled crabs, sir," said the waiter. "I can offer you some very nice deviled eggs." "Umph! I presume if you were out of mock-turtle soup you'd suggest some very nice mock oranges?" retorted the diner. "Yes, sir," answered the waiter, calmly. "At least I would suggest that you give them a mock trial."—Harper's Weekly.

Something Ominous.

"That," said Senator Hale, referring to a political report, "is ominous. It is like the ominous speech of the servant maid. She had been employed only two days. In fact, her master and mistress had been only two days married. And going to the locksmith, she said: 'Will you please come to our house at once, sir? When Mr. Newed started out this morning he slammed the door so hard he broke the lock.'"

The women took an active part in the campaign and made many votes. The "wets" had no organization, and adopted gum shoe campaigning methods only.

DROWN THEIR PLAYMATE

They Were "Keeping House" Like Grown-Ups in New York State.

Lockport, N. Y., June 24.—"Let's play house," said a little girl to Ruth McCabe, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John McCabe, of New-fane, Saturday.

"All right," replied Ruth, and several other girls who were playing with them volunteered to be members of the family.

After the mother and father of the family had been decided upon, Ruth McCabe was chosen as one of the children. They went through many things that a family is required to do and then they decided to give the "children" a bath.

Little Ruth McCabe was selected first. A large crock for packing meat was used as the washtub. It held 20 gallons of water. The child was placed in the crock and the washing begun.

Soon afterward they saw that she did not move and they ran out of the room in alarm. Their appearance frightened the mother of Ruth, who was preparing the noonday meal, and she immediately ran into the playroom. She found her child in the crock, dead. A physician worked over the child for three hours, but in vain.

KILLED THE CHILD

Kidnapers Strangle Their Little Victim in Louisiana.

New Orleans, La., June 24.—Two miles in the interior of a big swamp, near this city, the headless body of Walter Lamana, an Italian child between 7 and 8 years old, who was kidnaped and held for $6,000 ransom two weeks ago, was found by police and vigilantes just before daybreak Sunday. He had been strangled to death, according to the confession of one of the several Italians held by the police.

The boy's neck is supposed to have been broken when he was strangled, causing his head to become separated from the body when decomposition set in. The head was found a short distance from the body.

Five Italians, two of them women, are under arrest, charged with being accomplices in the murder, and extra details of police and deputies are maintaining order in the excited Italian quarter.

TAKING UP CARPETS.

Some Little Hints That Will Make Your Task Easy.

Taking up carpets is one of the most disagreeable of housecleaning tasks, usually, for the simple reason that the majority of persons do not properly perform the work.

To prevent the usual cloud of dust when removing a carpet, first loosen the tacks, picking them all up as drawn, which will prevent accidents and take only a few minutes of time.

Do not move the edge of the carpet until all the tacks have been removed, then begin at one side and roll the carpet carefully to the other side of the room.

Two or three persons can roll it better than one alone. Lift it carefully at both ends and the middle at the same time, and carry it out of doors and away from the house to be cleaned. Begin at one side of the room again and roll the papers with the dust on them, taking only a few at a time, and being very careful not to disturb the dust.

Carry the rolls out as they are made and pile them on the ground where they can be burned.

When the papers have all been removed there will be no dust on the floor or in the air, and a mopping of the floor with a clean mop and a good suds will make it fresh.

If there was no paper under the carpet the tacks and carpet should be removed in the same manner and a lot of bits of newspaper well dampened should be scattered over the dusty floor. Stir the paper gently about with the broom so as to gather the dust; then take it up in little piles on the dustpan.

Scatter another lot of the dampened paper and sweep it gently together, then mop the floor with the good suds.

DOMESTIC TIT-BITS.

To remove pencil marks from paint use a piece of lemon dipped in whitening.

Dark calicoes should be ironed on the wrong side with irons that are not too hot.

Don't boil meat; steam it, except salt beef. Don't throw away the water; use as stock for soup.

When the burners of lamps become clogged, put them in strong soap-suds and boil awhile to clean them.

Cut a snip off the ends of potatoes before they are roasted. This lets out any stray moisture and makes the potato mealy.

Eggs with very thin shells are not so likely to crack in boiling if they are put into cold water and brought very slowly to the boil.

Old brass can be made to look like new by pouring strong ammonia on it, scrubbing with a brush, and then rinsing in clear water.

When soot falls on the carpet cover it thickly with salt and then sweep it away. This way you may remove it without doing the least damage to your carpet.

Milk will take out ink stains from boards, cotton, and other fabrics, if used before dried in. Soak in a little milk, and then wash in the ordinary way.

When treacle is one of the ingredients of a cake, weigh it in the following manner. Flour the scales well, pour the treacle on to the flour, and the treacle will then run off quite easily and clearly.

Persons who are accustomed to use tea leaves for sweeping their carpets and find they leave stains will do well to employ fresh-cut grass instead. It is better than the tea leaves and gives a brighter and fresher look.

A LITTLE GIRL DRUGGED

THEN ASSAULTED BY A WHITE MAN IN A CROWDED ST. LOUIS PARK.

CHILD IS FIRST CHLOROFORMED

Brother Sent Away On a Fictitious Errand. After Which His Sister Was Truly Most Outrageously Treated.

St. Louis, June 24.—After being enticed to a secluded ravine yesterday afternoon at Forest park, to pick flowers, little Marcella Singer, 7 years old, of No. 4047 Clayton avenue, was chloroformed, attacked and seriously injured by an unknown white man.

The occurrence was within 200 yards of the mounted district police station, and in less than 200 feet of Clayton road and Jefferson drive, two main thoroughfares of the park, and occurred at 4 o'clock, while 10,000 persons were on the grounds.

With her 9-year-old brother, Marcella left home for a walk through the park, about five blocks away. At King's highway and the Wabash bridge they met a well-dressed young man, about 25 years old, who spoke to them and sent Leonard, the boy, for a newspaper for them to look at the picture supplement.

He walked as far as Clayton road with the boy and told him he and the girl would wait for him there.

"Did you ever smell any flowers as sweet as that?" he asked the child, placing a rag saturated with chloroform under her nose. She says he told her it was cologne water, and insisted on her smelling it again, and when she refused, he held her and pressed the cloth to her face until she ceased to struggle.

She regained consciousness in half an hour, and started to the road, where James R. Gibson, of No. 4504 Gibson avenue, returning from the golf links, found her crying. He asked what was the trouble, but she could not give a coherent account of what had happened, her mind still being confused by the drug, and he took her to her mother.

Doctor W. W. Gilbert, of No. 4109 Laclede avenue, was called and attended her. Her face was terribly burned by the chloroform, and the doctor says she must have been unconscious for fully half an hour.

The boy, returning with the newspaper, arrived after she had been taken home, and on the way back met the father, who was at work in the neighborhood.

The police were notified and Lieutenant McKenna, of the mounted district, detailed seven men to go at once to the spot and make every effort to apprehend the man. It was also reported at police headquarters, with a description of the man, and a general order issued for his arrest.

After looking over the ground the police found evidence of a struggle, though the chloroformed rag had been carried away.

Every druggist in the neighborhood was questioned, but all declared they had sold no chloroform within the past week.

Several passers-by saw him leading the child in the ravine, but thinking him her father, paid no attention. Doctor Gilbert says she will recover, though she will be in a state of extreme nervousness for several weeks. The odor of chloroform was strong on her clothes when she was taken home, and her clothes were badly torn.

LOCUSTS KILL BIRDS

Swarm Depopulates a Wood of Its Songsters.

Alton, Ill., June 24.—A horde of locusts has settled among the trees of "Hop Hollow," a popular picnic ground near here, and has driven every song bird out of the woods.

The hollow has been marked for its many song birds, but all have disappeared under the onslaughts of the insects. Crows were the first victims of the locusts and all were killed the first day.

Bluejays resisted the attack for a time, but eventually even the hardier birds were driven away.

The locusts are of the variety known as "seventeen-year locusts," and more are coming every day. People have ceased using the hollow for picnics and the locusts are in undisputed possession of the field.

A Y BAR CONSUMPTIVES

Health Officer Believes Too Many Are Seeking the State.

Austin, Texas, June 24.—All persons suffering from tuberculosis in an advanced stage are to be barred from Texas. Dr. W. H. Brumley, state health officer, says that he will issue a proclamation in a few days establishing a rigid quarantine against all persons afflicted with the disease to acute degree.

In doing this he places tuberculosis in the same category with yellow fever and smallpox. He has just returned from a trip of investigation to points in Southwestern Texas, where he says that he found many persons had just entered the state suffering with tuberculosis. It is his purpose to debar all such health seekers from Texas.

LOOSE-WILES

KANSAS CITY, U.S.A.

POPULAR CHINAMAN

WASHINGTON SORRY TO LOSE SIR CHENTUNG.

Promotion of Chinese Minister to Vice Presidency of Foreign Office at Peking a Distinguishing Honor.

Modifying the loud huzzahs of welcome are the farewell notes sounded from day to day by those who would speed the nation's departing guest, Sir Chentung Liang-Cheng, who has been promoted from Chinese minister to this capital, says the Washington Star, to the position of vice president of the foreign office at Peking. The promotion and transfer at this time, when the minister is in mourning for his mother, is a great surprise, inasmuch as it is contrary to Chinese custom to disturb an official in mourning. In fact, such action is so rare that history records it less than a half dozen times in more than 400 years. The rarity of the act makes it a compliment to the recipient of the honor, who, by the way, is a graduate of two American colleges of note and a westerner in all but name and dress. He came to Washington on his present mission just four years ago this month, succeeding the pert and popular Wu Ting Fang. During his stay here he has greatly improved the legation home, furnishing it according to Chinese custom and adding as a marked feature a personally supervised garden. He is fond of society and knows well how to entertain. As evidence of this is the long list of dinners, musicales, teas and luncheons he has engineered successfully, with only the assistance of his young daughter, who is not yet in society. His favorite conceit for table decoration is a series of tiny flowering plants set in the most exquisite vases.

As a baseball enthusiast Sir Chentung will be sorely missed at the collegiate games and lacking as the chief figure in a frequent picture in the neighborhood of the legation, when, with skirts tucked up, he engaged in a tossup with his sons and their playmates. As a tennis player he is the peer of any man in official life, not even excepting the members of the much talked of "tennis cabinet." To these accomplishments, Sir Chentung adds the art of horseback riding, automobile and bicycling, all of which are rare among the orientals.

A Bird and a Greenback.
Bicycle Policeman McQuade has been amusing the members of the precinct in which he does duty with a story about a bird and a greenback, remarks a Washington paper. Some of his brother officers charge him with having taken his story from an almanac, but he denies the soft impeachment and declares the story is a correct version of what really occurred.

"I was strolling along on my beat one bright afternoon," the bicycle policeman stated, "when suddenly I saw a man pick up a brick and raise his arm as if he intended to strike a blow. I grabbed his arm to prevent a probable murder, and the excited man pointed to the upper branches of a tree.

There was a bird in the tree with a greenback in its mouth. The sight of the greenback, the policeman admits, made him exceedingly interested, and before he realized what he was doing he was looking for a missile to join in the pursuit of the bird and bill.

In Baltimore.

Several amusing incidents have occurred in the Washington Juvenile court of late, which have been repeated by many people as typical of some testimony produced there.

Not long ago a colored boy was charged with a misdemeanor, and the judge asked him about his parents. "You love your mother, don't you?" his honor asked.

In a disinterested tone the boy replied: "Oh, yes, I like her all right."

It was some days after that a boy with a foreign name was brought before the court as a witness. He was frightened, and the judge wished to put him at his ease. So he began by asking some unimportant questions.

"You have a peculiar name," the court remarked. "Were you born in this country?"

"No, sir," replied the boy. "I was born in Baltimore."

Many Washington Smiths.

There are 13 pages of "Smiths" in the city directory, and Mr. William R. Smith, the genial superintendent of the government botanic gardens, in looking over that volume discovered that there are just eight men who wear the cognomen of "William R. Smith." This sometimes results in a mixup of the mails and other things, but Mr. Smith of botanical fame maintains that the name "Smith" is an eminently respectable one. He says it frequently happens that men when placed under arrest by the police and taken to the station, house give the fictitious name of Smith instead of giving their real "handle."

"They do this," added Superintendent Smith of the botanic gardens, "to gain a respectability they did not possess before, for mind you the name of Smith is an honorable one."

One Building for All.

An effort is being made to get all the scientific societies of Washington, D. C., housed under a single roof. The scheme is to get them all to pool their issues and erect a fine structure which will be a source of pride to them all.

There is no case of indigestion, no matter how irritable or how obstinate that will not be speedily relieved by the use of Kodol. The main factor in curing the stomach of any disorder is rest, and the only way to get rest is to actually digest the food for the stomach itself. Kodol will do it. It is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids containing the very same juices found in a healthy stomach. It conforms to the pure food and drugs law. Sold by Arlington pharmacy.

Engineers at $2 Per Day Were Supposed to Pile on Wood Every Fifteen Miles and Also Fix the Track.

The bunch was sitting around a table at the Railroad club, says the Kansas City Journal. It was raining and no one had brought an umbrella. The conversation was of railroads—railroad men and railroad methods, past and present. An old-time engineer drifted in to get out of the wet. For a time he listened silently to the talk of the days gone by. Finally he moved up closer and began to wax reminiscent.

"You young fellows have a lot to say about those good old days," he said "but I bet there's not one of you but is simply repeating what has been told him by his father or grandfather. Those were good days, but they were not easy days. Then they had to stop their engines every ten or fifteen miles to take on wood. No, I don't go back that far myself, but I've fired for men who did."

"In the old days of railroading there was a wood pile every few miles along the road. The engines used only wood then, you know, and when they came to one of the piles both the engineer and fireman would climb down and fill the tank with fuel. I guess we would think ourselves worked to death if we had to do a thing like that now. Then the train would go along for maybe ten or fifteen miles further and the performance would be repeated. Sounds funny, doesn't it?"

"But it was the men who did that work, who made railroading what it is today, and it really seems to me that there was better stuff in them than you see now. As I said, I fired for some of them and I know about the differences, then and now. There are mighty few of the old-timers left and fewer still in active service."

"Besides the difference in fuel there was about as big a difference in pay. The engineer got $2 a day and the fireman $1, and there was no such thing as overtime. Your day ended when you got to the end of your run, and then you couldn't get water in the boiler unless the engine was moving. There wasn't any such thing as an injector or an inspirator in those days. There was a pump and it was attached to the guides of the drivers, so unless they were moving there was no way to force the water in. Now less than thirty pounds of steam is needed to fill your boiler."

"And in those days the engineer was supposed to make all repairs on the road. Of course you couldn't expect him to do it now, the machinery is so much bigger. Why, take the guides. He couldn't wind a piece of wire around them now if they broke, and keep on running. Now-a-days if anything happens to one side of an engine all there is to do is to cut it out and run light with the other. Every locomotive is practically two engines, you know, one on each side."

lowers did was to make the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers what it is today, conservative and respected by everyone. If a man doesn't belong to the Brotherhood the officials of the road at once begin to think there is something wrong with him. And you never heard of the Brotherhood being in a row or a foolish squabble. They started it and carried it through when organizations were in pretty bad repute and when they deserved to be. But they never let the Brotherhood go to the bad.

"One more thing about the old days," the engineer relighted his cigar and rang the bell for "Ben."

"The way they ran freights was like this: An engine was rated as able to pull, say, fifteen cars, and pull just that many cars it had to whether they were loaded with straw hats or brick. Now the horse power and diameter of the drivers shows just how many tons an engine can pull under given conditions, and that many it pulls, no matter how many cars are in the train."

ARRESTS FOR WEEK, 731

BEFORE THE "LID" WENT ON, THE NUMBER RAN UP TO TOTAL OF 1,122.

THE AMBULANCE IS NOT AS BUSY

Effect of New Law, During the First Days of Its Trial, Is Apparent in Downtown Districts in St. Louis.

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—The new law relating to the closing of saloons, summer gardens and other establishments where intoxicants are dispensed, which went into effect at 1 o'clock last Monday morning, has caused the number of police arrests to decrease.

The statistics of last week show that 731 arrests were made in the various districts, compared with 1,122 for the week before. A large percentage of the latter arrests were made between the hours of midnight and 5 o'clock. In most cases they were due to fights among intoxicated people.

During the "closed" hours last week, with the exception of cases where the principals had been unable to "sober up," the arrests were comparatively few.

The former "all night" saloons and barrel houses in the downtown districts were never without early morning brawls, and in the third, fourth and central districts the patrol wagon trips were as numerous between 1 and 5 a. m. as they were during the earlier part of the evening, prior to last week.

Commanders of the downtown districts find that most of the "plain drunk" arrests are made between 1 and 2 o'clock a. m. now, and an arrest of this kind after the latter hour during the past week was considered rare.

Market street, until a week ago, was brightly lighted and the saloons were as crowded between midnight and daylight as they were during the earlier part of the evening.

The trips of the ambulance from the city dispensary are not as frequent as they were. It was not an unusual occurrence for the drivers to make seven or eight trips after 1 a. m.

FATHER OF HER "STEPPAD"

Becomes the Husband of a Pretty Nebraska Miss.

Imperial, Neb., June 24.—Willis F. Morgan, a Chase county rancher, aged 72, has just been married, according to advices received here from Champion, to Miss Luella A. Charlton, aged 22, the pretty stepdaughter of his son, Marcus M. Morgan.

Morgan fell in love with and began to pay court to Miss Charlton several months ago, when she went to his home to visit his two daughters, young ladies of about her own age.

Despite the great disparity in their ages and the fact that she is a singularly attractive girl and has had many young suitors, Miss Charlton encouraged Morgan's suit, and when, a few weeks ago he proposed marriage, she promptly accepted him.

"I have been subject to sciatic rheumatism for years," says E. H. Waldron, of Wilton, Junction, Iowa. "My joints were stiff and gave me much pain and discomfort. My joints would crack when I straightened up. I used Chamberlain's Pain Balm and have been thoroughly cured. Have not had a pain or ache from the old trouble for many months. It is certainly a most wonderful liniment."

A POSSIBILITY.

That Became a Fact and Pleases Many People.

A. R. Lewis, M. D., in a lengthy article in the columns of the American Journal of Health, says concerning hair: "It's deterioration is a constant source of worry to humanity, consequently bad people are readily deceived by 'fake' hair restoratives. The wish that a hair preparation will 'fill the bill' is father to the fancy that it is likely to do so. A rare case in point is that of Newborn's Herpicide, which actually does 'fill the bill.' It destroys the parasite that attacks the hair root, and prevents dandruff, falling hair and baldness." Sold by leading druggists.

AROUND THE HOUSE

ODDS AND ENDS OF INFORMATION FOR THE HOUSEKEEPER.

How to Clean the Faucets and Other Brasses Easily—Repairing the Favorite Rocker Seat—Other Things.

Cleaning up faucets, the tops of the fireplace irons, and other brasses about the house seems to be a big bugbear to very many housekeepers, but if one will save the water in which the brasses are parboiled before putting into the bean pot to be baked, and wash the brasses thoroughly with this, then rub them dry with a soft cloth, it will take but a few moments' labor to have them all bright and shining, and the hands will have been cleansed also, instead of becoming grimy with some sort of powder.

Many sewing or small rocking chairs are so comfortable that one feels a pang at parting with them when the cane seats are broken through, and there is no place where they can conveniently be sent for repair. When the reseating is attempted at home, the result is often a failure, for the newly constructed seat is too apt to sag or lump. This can be easily prevented by cutting strips of burlap about two inches wide and tacking them firmly in place. The strips should be interwoven so as to resemble a checker board. Over such a foundation and upholstery can be neatly fastened.

Kitchen aprons wear out a few inches below the belt, especially if one works much about a sink which has a sharp edge, as soapstone and iron sinks too often do. It is an excellent plan to make the apron long and with a deep hem, then when it becomes worn it can be quickly ripped out of the belt, the hem let down and the bottom of it gathered and sewn into the belt and then after the worn part has been cut off what is now the bottom of the apron can be hemmed. This does not take as long as to make a new apron, and it does make one piece of goods do the work of two.

A woman noted for her labor saving inventions says that she never winds bobbins for her sewing machine. She simply places the bobbin in the shuttle after putting the end of the thread through the eye, puts the shuttle in the machine and the spool in one of the drawers of the machine, and thus winds her bobbin as she stitches.

Many lace waists which have been made up over a thin china silk often become too small for wear after they have been cleaned or washed several times. It is not quite practical to cut the front open and insert a fancy vest in a blousing waist, although it can be done with excellent results in a tight fitting corsage. Usually the net or lace can be pulled back to nearly its original proportions and the trouble is with the silk alone. This may be remedied by inserting a piece of silk each side of the front in the lining. This is covered by making a deep collar of batiste, which is one of the fashionable accessories of the moment, and covering the inserted pieces by the adjustment of the collar. The deep collar should be removable, and can be worn with other waists. It may be embroidered or simply edged with lace.

There are many households where fresh fish is not available more than once or twice a week, where the family are fond of chowder. Salt fish can be freshened so as to be usable for this purpose, but canned salmon is much more to be desired, and once the cook has used it she will wonder why she never thought of it before. Make the chowder in the usual way.

An oiled floor is much harder to care for than a polished floor from the fact that a drop of grease from the frying pan makes an ugly looking spot which seems very hard to get out. On such a spot, just put a little baking soda, let it remain a short time to absorb the grease, and then wash in hot water.

When the kitchen adjoins the dining-room, with no pantry between, there is too often an odor of the cooking noticeable in the dining-room and other rooms where the doors are open. To obviate this put a few drops of oil of lavender in a cup of hot water and let it stand in the dining-room for five minutes before dinner is served.

It is often an economy of time and fuel to boil quite a quantity of potatoes at one cooking. Peel them, and thus have them ready for frying, baking with cheese, and similar methods of quick reheating.

Ice Cream with Sponge Cake.

Make a sheet of sponge cake by any tested rule, and when cold cut in three inch squares. Cut these in halves, as for layer cake, and cut the upper piece in four strips. Cover the lower half with chocolate frosting and place the four strips around the edge to form a box. These strips will be held in place by the frosting. When the frosting has hardened fill the boxes with chocolate ice cream and put a candied cherry on top the cream. This makes a novelty for a luncheon and always calls forth shouts of delight from children if served at a party given for them.

NAKED BOY RIDES A LOG

RESCUED BY BOATMEN, BADLY SUNBURNED AND NEARLY EXHAUSTED.

TELEGRAMS WERE SENT AHEAD

Jefferson City Lad Who Took Twelve Mile Ride Down the Missouri River, Steering Clear of Drift Piles, Etc.

Jefferson City, Mo., June 24.—John Lammore, the 14-year-old son of a foreman of shoe factories at the penitentiary, had a thrilling experience in the Missouri river at this point Saturday.

He was swimming in the river with several companions near the state prison. The stream was swollen and filled with drift.

Young Lammore swam out to a mass of drift, and, climbing on a log, proceeded to take a ride. He became frightened after riding a short distance, and, afraid that he could not swim to the shore, he yelled for assistance, and his companions ran for help as he disappeared around a bend. By the time the other boys dressed and reached the boy's father, he was several miles down the river.

Telegrams were sent to Osage City and Bonnet's Mill to look out for the boy. Twelve miles down the river he was taken off by a skiff that put out from the mouth of the Osage river, none the worse for his voyage, except that he was badly sunburned.

After reaching the log, he said, the current swung it to the center of the river and he was afraid to undertake the long swim back to land. Fortunately the log was large enough to bear his weight.

Once or twice he was nearly thrown into the water by collisions with other logs and drift, but managed to hold on until he saw the skiff put out from the mouth of the Osage. His rescuers supplied him with clothing to get back home.

CIRCUS TRUST AGENT GONE

Assured That License Will Be Reduced to $300.

Kansas City, Mo., June 24.—Having received assurances from the lower house of the council that it will tonight approve of the ordinance which reduces the license to be paid by circuses from $500 to $300 for the first day, and $3 a car for every subsequent exhibition day, the agent for the "circus trust," who has been spending several days in the city lobbying for the passage of the ordinance, has gone on his way rejoicing. The upper house has already approved the ordinance.

The man who has been active in getting the legislation referred to represents the Ringling Bros., Forepaugh—Sells and Buffalo Bill shows, and it is understood that these three tented attractions have formed a trust.

To Preserve Youth. One woman says that there is only one thing to remember, one thing to forget, if you want always to be young. The first is the power of right thinking, which can rebuild and remodel one's life and character, and the things to forget are—"regrets." Nothing is so truly useless or such a handicap as regrets of any kind, and it is the first thing one must learn to eliminate if one wants to be fifty years young.

The Dangerous Crinoline. In the days of the wearing of crinolines Lady Dorothy Nevill tells in her book of reminiscences how, but for her prompt action, she might very possibly have been burned to death. She was showing an engraving over the fireplace to a guest and in some way her voluminous skirts caught fire. "None of the women present could do much to assist me," she says, "for their enormous crinolines rendered them almost completely impotent to deal with fire. Had they come close to me they would have been in a blaze, too." So she had perforce to work out her own salvation, which she did by rocking herself backward and forward on a thick rug till the flames were extinguished.

Origin of Slang Phrase. James Baker of the Royal Geographical society gives this little story of a Greek saint: "Our good St. Blazios that gave us the phrase 'drunk as Blazes,' for this saint was pleasantly done to death by having his flesh torn off by wool combs, and so he became the patron of the English wool combers; and as a high feast was kept up on his day, and the people who frequented the feast were called Blazes, so the saying grew into the English tongue and remains there fixed and useful."

"Yez wouldn't?" "No. I could bring yez to yer fate quicker be shtandin' up in front of yez and dhrinkin' it myself."

HORSE LIKED THE TIES. Enjoyed Pleasant Trot in Front of Angry Train Crew.

This is why the Hutchinson train on the Great Northern was half an hour late at the terminus of the line, says the Minneapolis Journal.

A nice old Charley horse, marooned at Lake Minnetonka by the return of the summer residents, got on the track at Crystal bay and trotted placidly ahead of the train till it had passed New Germany in Carver county. When the train pulled up at a station old Charley kept steadily on and it took the locomotive several minutes to catch up with him again. Had it not been for these chances to run for a few miles at normal speed, the train would have been much more than 30 minutes late.

The exasperating thing about it to the engine crew was the stick-to-it-iveness of old Mr. Horse. He seemed to like the right of way and refused to turn off at any of the crossings. The head brakeman went out on the running board and pelted him with chunks of coal, while the engineer expressed profanity with the whistle but the track remained blocked for speed by the moving obstacle. They didn't dare run him down, and when they were at a station he was so far ahead that they couldn't run on and catch him. He bade defiance to block system signals and derailing switches and so it was a big relief to a thoroughly mad train crew when, a mile beyond New Germany, he flitted his tail and turned off on an intersecting road. He had made a run of 22 miles and was as fresh as a daisy at the finish.

"I found him 30 minutes late," said the engineer with an air of annoyance at the end of the run, "but I hate like the dickens to run my train as the second section of a horse."

FOR SAFETY ON CURVES.

Lesson Learned from Railroad Wreck in England.

The railway accident at Salisbury, Eng., in which a train at high speed was thrown from the track on a curve, has led to much discussion concerning the conditions necessary for safe running on curves. The tracks are specially banked to prevent derailing, and the cause of wrecks seems to be failure of the trucks to guide the engine. This, it is shown, does not depend upon the truck itself. An old engineer points out that certain trains which had a habit of leaving the track on a downhill curve were braked mostly by the engine, causing the cars to bump against it, and, as the drawbar between engine and tender was lower than the axle of the trucks the rear end of the engine was depressed and the forward end raised. The conditions are now reversed. With emergency brakes, the braking is mostly done by the train, but as the drawbar is now higher than the axle of the trucks the forward end of the engine is raised by the pulling back of the cars. A new locomotive design is the suggested remedy. In this the weight must be readjusted and enough must be placed on the forward trucks to make sure that they can guide the engine at all times.

Rode on Corpse's Ticket. "Time was when traveling men who rode with the same conductor year after year could hope to receive a quiet wink once in awhile in place of a demand for his fare," said one of the old Michigan salesmen to the Detroit Free Press. "Nowadays the companies are so strict a knight of the punch would not dare pass his own mother. I had one friend remember me awhile ago, though."

"I got on at a small station bound for Cadillac. There were not many in the car, and I thought I must have taken the wrong train. Then I saw the conductor was an old friend. He came down where I sat alone, after awhile and handed me a slip. 'They've just put a corpse on board, Fred,' he said, 'and I guess you might as well ride on his ticket. The corpse is boxed up tight in the baggage car, and he couldn't kick if he wanted to.'

"I took the ticket, but I came so near splitting with laughter that it looked as if I would have to let the other passengers into the joke. I didn't, though. It's the only time I remember passing for a 'dead one.'"

FINED FOR ANNOYING A GIRL

Asked Miss Eva Davis to Dinner and Pays $25.

George James, prosecuting attorney of Putnam county, Mo., was in police court in Kansas City Saturday, charged with annoying Miss Eva Davis, 21 years old, at the union depot Friday afternoon. V. I. Bell testified in police court that James had annoyed the girl by forcing his attentions upon her.

James was called into police court under the name of "Jack Smith." When he appeared before the desk sergeant at police headquarters he refused to give his name or to make any other statement.

Fred Coon, the assistant attorney, was personally acquainted with James. James said he had mistaken Miss Davis for another woman and had got into conversation with her. There was nothing improper in the conversation, he said.

"Did this man make any improper suggestions?" Judge Kyle asked Miss Davis.

"He did not," she answered, "except that he asked me to go out to supper with him and then go for a walk."

Judge Kyle fined James $25 and gave him 30 days of execution for the entire amount.

JONAH AND THE WHALE

This Story Has Nothing to Do With Case in Question.

St. Louis, Mo., June 24.—Attorney John F. Merriman, opposing at Clayton the motion of the Bible College of Missouri to strike out that portion of Rev. Gustavus Hoffman's answer which referred to Jonah and the whale, declared that the court ought not to compel Hoffman to contribute $5,000 to an institution to increase the race of infidels.

Donald Grover, attorney for the Bible College, said that Rev. Hoffman's $5,000 note, on which the suit was brought, is part of a simple contract and that the question of whether Jonah was swallowed by the whale or Mathusalem lived to be 967 years old had nothing to do with the matter.

Judge McIlhinney took the case under advisement.

FILLED OUT A LICENSE

Herself and Kept Her Marriage Secret Three Months.

Edwardsville, Ill., June 24.—Acting in her capacity as deputy to her father, County Clerk Edward Feutz, of Madison county, Miss Edna Feutz was married and was able to keep the fact secret for more than three months.

Yesterday Mr. Feutz received a letter, telling him of his daughter's marriage to Albert L. Steiner.

Miss Feutz had access to the marriage license blanks and filled one out for herself, taking care that it was kept from the records.

Stop That Cold

To check every cold or Grippe with "Preventics" means sure defeat for Pneumonia. To stop a cold with Preventics is safer than to let it run and be obliged to cure it afterwards. To be sure, Preventics will cure even a deeply seated cold, but taken early—at the sneezing stage—they break, or head off these early colds. That's surely better than what they are called Preventics. Preventics are little Candy Cold Cures. No Quinine, no physic, nothing sickening. Nice for the children—and thoroughly safe too. If you feel chilly, if you sneeze, if you ache all over, think of Preventics. Promptness may also save half your usual sickness. And don't forget your child, if there is feverishness, night or day. Herein probably lies Preventics' greatest efficiency. Sold in 1c boxes for the pocket, also in 25c boxes of 4 Preventics. Insist on your druggists giving you

REGARDING RAILROADS

THE HERCULEAN TASK OF RATE CLERKS NECESSITATES SPECIAL ACTION.

COACH, CAB AND CABOOSE ITEMS

Matters of Interest Picked Up From Various Sources for the Benefit of Democrat-Sentinel Readers.

As a result of the determination of the railway presidents not to oppose public sentiment at this time, railway rate clerks are working night and day to put passenger traffic on the 2-cent basis, the first effort being to comply with the new laws now effective in various states, and then to adjust the situation to the determination of the conference of the executives held in Chicago Friday to apply the 2-cent rate to interstate traffic.

The task is almost herculean, and although the interstate commerce law requires thirty days notice of reduction of rates, it is believed that the present situation will be classed as an "emergency" within the meaning of the law, and the roads permitted to put the new rates into effect as rapidly as they are complied by the rate clerks. Thousands of tariffs will have to be compiled before the work is completed.

Nominally, interstate rates are supposed to be upon a 3-cent basis, but the roads actually have been receiving but a trifle over 2 cents a mile, due to reductions to conventions, etc.

Western roads will be hit hardest by the 2-cent rate, for their sparsely settled territory will not respond to the stimulus of cheaper rates as will the more thickly inhabited eastern districts.

The reduction of one-way and round trip tickets to a basis of 2 cents a mile may cause an increase in travel which will more than offset the special business created by convention and other rates, but the officers of western roads doubt it.

Vacancies Are Advertised.

W. E. Merrifield, Missouri Pacific trainmaster, Sunday advertised the following vacancies on the road:

Vacancy for a brakeman on Nos. 95 and 96, with Conductor F. D. Lister, in place of O. A. Conkle; Sunday lay over at Kansas City. The place must be filled by July 1.

Vacancy for conductor, in place of R. J. Richards on Nos. 95 and 96, with Sunday lay over here. Place must be filled by July 1.

Vacancy for brakeman on Nos. 75 and 58, with Conductor W. H. Beard, in place of J. L. Doolittle. By July 2 the place must be filled.

Vacancy with Conductor R. M. Lyons on the same run, in place of C. L. Mitchell, who, with Doolittle, has been promoted to conductor.

Eating Into "Katy" Roadbed.

The undermining by the Missouri river of some of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas' rip-rap and willow matting work along the bank near St. Charles will cause an expenditure of $10,000 in addition to about $350,000 spent up to date as a protection to the roadbed, which runs close to the treacherous stream.

North of St. Charles the river has made new encroachments and those in charge of the work being done by the railway company say that $75,000 has been spent this summer.

The work extends from Pike street in St. Charles to the lower part of the Cul de Sac farming district, four miles north.

People of Lewis Are Sore.

The feeling against the M. K. & T. railroad in Lewis and vicinity is growing more intense every day, says Saturday's Clinton Democrat.

The railroad has closed its depot there and has notified the government it will not handle mail. Lewis is a thriving town, and this action on the part of the railroad is a great hardship, not only involving financial loss, but causing much inconvenience.

The people of the town will probably carry the matter before the state board of railway commissioners to secure better treatment.

New Frisco Car Shops.

More than 400 laborers are at work leveling the site for the Frisco's new car and locomotive works at Springfield. The foundations are being laid for the coach and paint shops, and it is expected to complete the plant by December. The initial investment will be $1,000,000.

The officials in St. Louis are kept apprised of the work by photographs taken from four towers on the site each week.

PROBE A MAN'S KILLING

INVESTIGATION WAS BEGUN AT OKLAHOMA CITY THIS MORNING.

JAMES R. MEADOWS FOUND DEAD

Rudolph Tegeler, Who Admits Intimacy With Mrs. Meadows, May Be Able to Throw Light On the Mystery.

Oklahoma City, Okla., June 24.—Coroner Shaffee today will institute the first legal investigation into the death of James R. Meadows, whose decomposed body was found in a shallow grave near this city Friday.

Mrs. Lila Meadows, the widow, Rudolph Tegeler and Miss Laura Keith, companion will be placed on the stand.

Detective Lawler and Coroner Shaffee were in conference most of the day Sunday and discussed plans concerning the process of investigation. Tegeler, Mrs. Meadows and Miss Keith are at the county jail. Many other witnesses, associates of both Meadows and Tegeler, will also testify.

A post-mortem examination reveals the fact that Meadows was shot in the breast and the head, and also that he must have been struck in the head.

Tegeler says he does not know anything about the crime, but does deny that he wrote a letter to Mrs. R. Myers, of Elk City, describing the crime and giving a diagram of the spot where the body of Meadows was buried and where he himself later led the officers. He says he wrote the letter for some one else, but will not say who it is. Tegeler seems to fear alleged supernatural powers of the Myers woman.

Tegeler has admitted his intimacy with Mrs. Meadows.

FIFTY YEARS A PRINTER

Tyler Parker, of Montgomery City, Celebrates Event.

Montgomery City, Mo., June 24.—Tyler Parker, perhaps the oldest printer in Missouri, in point of service, has just celebrated his fiftieth anniversary "at the case." He has been "setting type" in Missouri for half a century, and is still at it. He has been with the Standard here for forty-two years.

Parker had quite an experience in the newspaper business at Hannibal, also at Columbia, Macon and Mexico. He ran a paper at Mexico during the civil war called the Beacon, which was suppressed by a company of federal troops.

Parker's friends think he is the ugliest man in Missouri, as well as the oldest typesetter.
